

The initial idea of the Rivan brand name
HARDY AND GENEROUS

This Catalogue is dedicated to 80x160 designs of Rivan brand. Today, due to the popular modern architectural style, architects have started using large ceramics. Well, if we do not forget the truth, the use of large size ceramic slabs multiplies the effect of the final work. Well, you can use this product size on the floor or wall. It is up to you to decide. But it is better to know that this ceramic slab has advantages for building floors that not everyone knows about.

Due to its 1.28 meter area, Rivan ceramic is suitable for large spaces. Suppose you have a car showroom with high ceilings, if you use 80 x 160 ceramic slabs in this space, you will have a better depth of view and the cars in the showroom will look multiple. For the wall, you can use 80x160 ceramic, which is a slab. But keep in mind that these products should be used standing and completely on the wrist.

AMSTERDAM TEAL

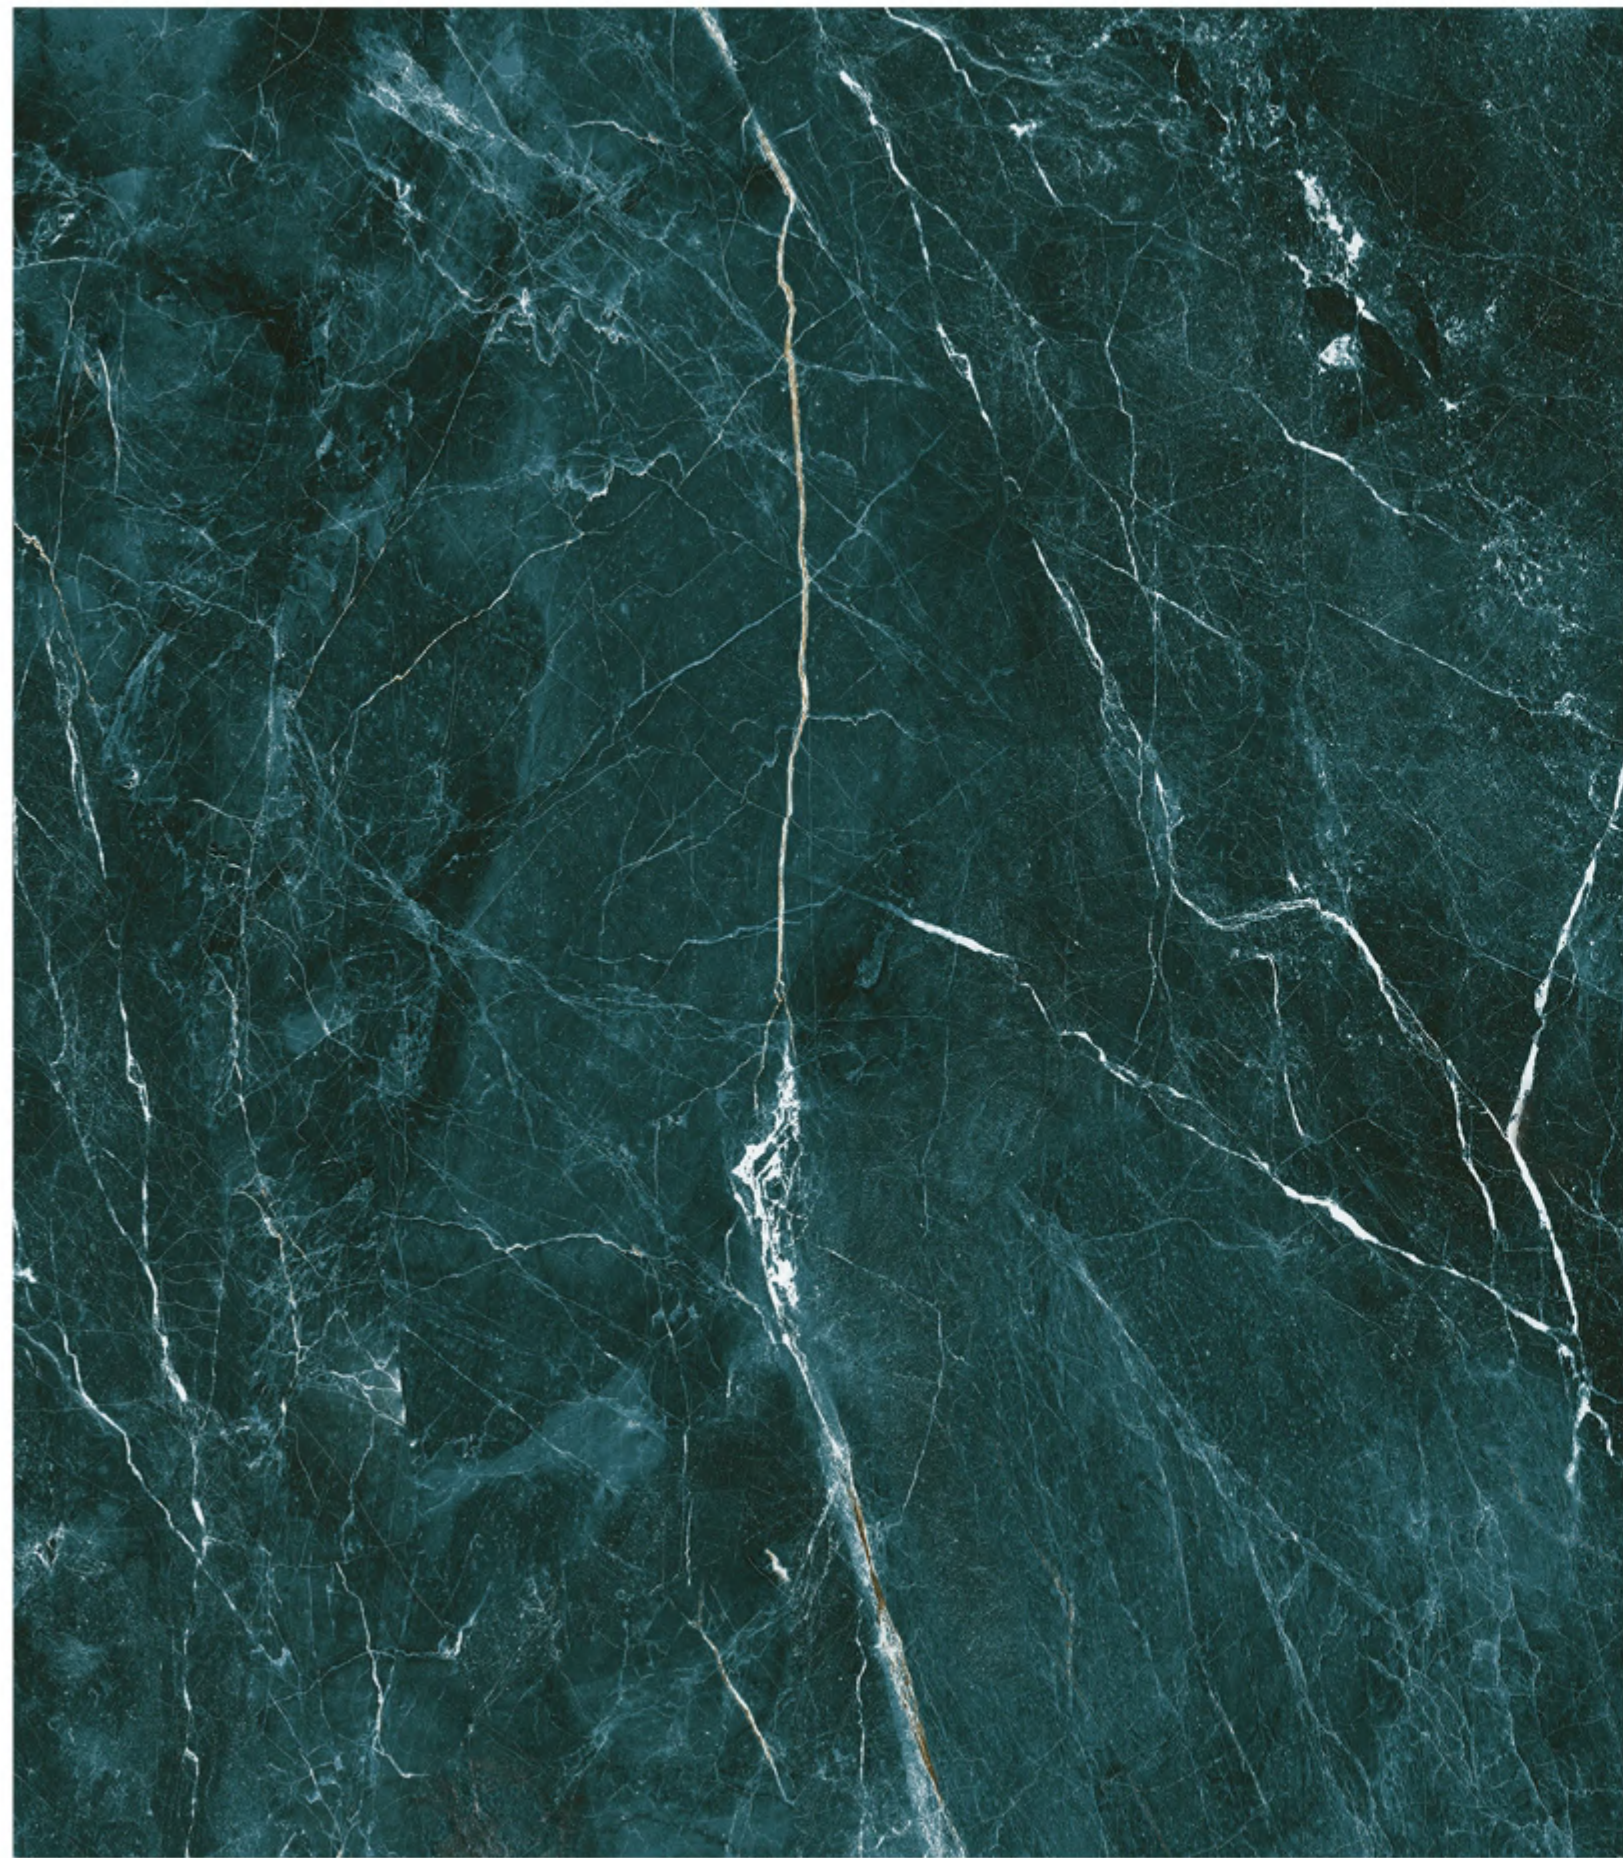

This design is produced with glaze polish and toxic sugar glossy semi polish. The glaze effect has the ability to improve the appearance and design of spaces and can transfer natural stone to indoor or outdoor spaces. Resistance and durability: compared to some heavy materials such as natural stone, effect glazes are highly resistant, scratch-resistant and durable. Ease of installation and maintenance: effect glazes are often lighter and thinner than some heavy materials such as natural stone. This feature makes their installation and maintenance much easier and faster. In addition, their lower weight also helps to facilitate their transportation, installation and replacement. Flexibility in design: effect glazes have high flexibility in design. Due to the wide range of colors, designs and patterns, you can easily create unique and customized designs on the ceramic surface. Resistance to water and moisture: Glaze effect usually has a high resistance to water and moisture. This feature makes the ceramic surface not exposed to moisture and water hazards using this glaze and improves its durability.

Amsterdam

PORCELAIN

Through their ceramics, Rivan Ceramic Company not only brings the magic of Amsterdam's winter landscape into homes but also fosters a connection to the city's rich art and cultural heritage, celebrating the beauty found in nature's cycles.

Inspired by this breathtaking scenery, Rivan Ceramic Company found its muse in the enchanting winter tableau. The company's artisans looked to the harmonious interplay of nature's colors and textures, drawing from the icy blues and whites of the frozen river, alongside the vibrant greens that peek through the frost. This fusion of elements led to the creation of a unique collection of ceramics that encapsulates the essence of Amsterdam's winter beauty. Each piece reflects the tranquility of the frozen canals, while the organic forms and glazes pay homage to the lush greenery that lies beneath the ice.

Natural Porcelain Ceramic

As winter descends upon Amsterdam, the frozen entrance to the city casts a stunning spectacle that captivates all who encounter it. The once-bustling waterways become a serene canvas of glimmering ice, transforming the canals into a magical landscape. The stark contrast of white ice and the rich hues of the city's historic architecture creates an ethereal beauty, while the surrounding trees, adorned with a delicate layer of frost, stand as silent witnesses to the season's quiet charm.

CININNATI

This design is produced with toxic semi polish. To produce sugar effect ceramic tiles, you should choose polishing materials from sugar effect powders, which are sugar-like and transparent particles. The method of making this batch is that the granulated raw materials are mixed with a certain amount of sugar effect powders and then these materials are placed on the surface of tiles or ceramics using special brushes and advanced machines. Digital printing technique can be used to produce ceramics with various designs and models in this type of ceramics. In this way, we print our desired design on the ceramic surface using special software. Sometimes the sugar effect handle can also be considered a kind of toxic polishing ceramic because the materials are not spread evenly on it and it can be produced semi-glossy or semi-matte. Sugar-like materials on the ceramic surface give a special kind of beauty to this product, which has its own fans.

PORCELAIN

Each piece reflects the architectural details that define Cincinnati, marrying the spirit of the city's landscape with a contemporary aesthetic. Through their ceramics, Rivan embraces the complexities of Cincinnati, transforming the city's palette of gray and its legacy of smoke into beautiful, functional art that pays homage to the urban experience.

Inspired by this gritty beauty, Rivan Ceramic Company sought to capture the essence of Cincinnati in its ceramic designs. The muted grays and smoky textures of the city informed their creations, embodying the raw character of the urban environment.

Cincinnati, a city steeped in history, grapples with its share of industrial smoke and pollution, which often casts a gray pallor over its skyline. This persistent hue permeates the landscape, weathering the city's striking architecture—ranging from its historic buildings in Over-the-Rhine to the modern designs that adorn the riverfront. The interplay of smoke and structural forms creates a unique atmosphere, one that reflects both the challenges and the resilience of urban life.

BERN

This design is produced with glaze polished. The dense and hard surface of porcelain has made polishing a suitable alternative to glossy enamel surfaces. This means that a tile after baking, using polishing technology, will create a shine without glaze. What is ceramic polishing and nano polishing? However, polished ceramics may require sealing, and can absorb stubborn stains and become brittle in contact with water and chlorinated acids. When porcelain is first made, it is not water absorbent, but the polishing process to polish the unglazed surface creates microscopic holes in the surface that make the ceramic susceptible to stain absorption. Polished ceramics need insulation, such as nano, which are known as nano-polished ceramics after applying this insulation. Ceramics with nano treatment are more resistant to pollution and stain, more shiny and have sharper colors. The nano process is more complicated than you think. This process involves applying two different compounds up to ten layers deep on the ceramic surface, and then re-firing at 1250 degrees Celsius.

PORCELAIN

Nestled within the stunning landscape of Switzerland, Bern is a city renowned for its enchanting beauty and pristine whiteness, especially during the winter months. The graceful architecture of its medieval buildings is complemented by the soft blanket of snow that often covers the streets, creating a picturesque scene. Add to this the crystal-clear waters of the Aare River, which beautifully contrast the snowy surroundings, and the majestic icebergs that drift nearby, and you have a truly magical setting.

Inspired by this breathtaking environment, Rivan Ceramic Company drew upon the serene aesthetics of Bern to create its unique ceramic designs. The purity and elegance of the city's winter landscape are reflected in their pieces, where soft whites and gentle blues evoke the calmness of the icy rivers and the pure beauty of the snow-capped architecture.

Natural Porcelain Ceramic

Each ceramic creation encapsulates the essence of Bern, blending the charm of its natural surroundings with the artistry that defines the city, allowing those who use them to bring a slice of Bern's enchanting environment into their homes.

Lubin, a captivating city in Poland, is enveloped by the rich tapestry of its gray forests and the rugged grooves of its landscape. The striking contours of the nearby mountains, characterized by their cracks and the natural fractures found in the stones, create a unique geological narrative that speaks to the resilience and beauty of the region's natural environment. These elements come together to form a picturesque backdrop, illustrating the intricate relationship between the land and the elements that shape it.

Rivan's Lubin tile collection captures the essence of this enchanting city, serving as a reminder of the remarkable characteristics that define the natural world of Lubin. Each tile reflects the subtle grays and organic lines inspired by the city's forests and rocky formations, imbuing the designs with a sense of place and identity.

By integrating these features into their ceramic creations, Rivan honors Lubin's distinctive landscape, allowing the beauty of this Polish city to resonate within homes and spaces far beyond its borders.

MOSCOW

This design is produced with sugar glossy. To produce sugar effect ceramic tiles, you should choose polishing materials from sugar effect powders, which are sugar-like and transparent particles. The method of making this batch is that the granulated raw materials are mixed with a certain amount of sugar effect powders and then these materials are placed on the surface of tiles or ceramics using special brushes and advanced machines.

Digital printing technique can be used to produce ceramics with various designs and models in this type of ceramics. In this way, we print our desired design on the ceramic surface using special software.

Sometimes the sugar effect handle can also be considered a kind of toxic polishing ceramic because the materials are not spread evenly on it and it can be produced semi glossy or semi matte. Sugar-like materials on the ceramic surface give a special kind of beauty to this product, which has its own fans.

PORCELAIN

Moscow, the majestic capital of Russia, is a city that radiates beauty and grandeur, particularly in winter when it is transformed into a dazzling wonderland. As snow blankets the streets, the city takes on a pristine whiteness, turning iconic landmarks like the Kremlin and St. Basil's Cathedral into picturesque silhouettes against a backdrop of soft, fluffy snow. The quiet charm of winter gives Moscow an enchanting quality, where the bustle of everyday life pauses and serenity reigns supreme.

The beauty of Moscow in winter is complemented by its unique urban landscape, characterized by grand architecture that marries historical opulence with contemporary design. The shimmering whiteness of snow enhances the elegance of the city's historic buildings, creating a striking contrast with the vibrant colors of the Russian palette often seen in the architecture. Icebergs of imagination and creativity seem to rise from the riverbanks, as the city's artistic expressions reflect its rich heritage and innovative spirit.

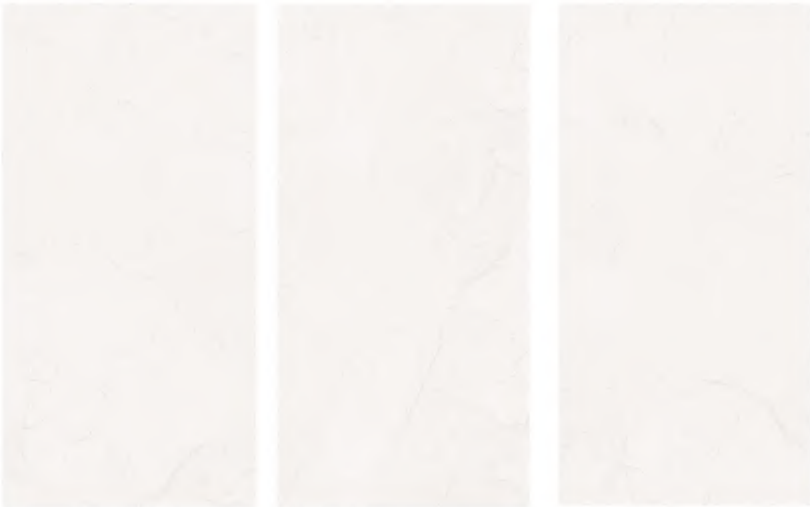

The whiteness and icy aesthetic of Rivan's ceramic designs draw from the natural beauty and architectural elegance of Moscow. These ceramics embody a sense of cool sophistication, evoking the serene feelings associated with the winter landscapes of the city. The crisp whites and icy blues encapsulate the essence of Moscow's winters, serving as a reminder of the city's enchanting coldness. In every piece, Rivan captures the spirit of Moscow's winter, allowing you to infuse your home with a touch of the city's unique allure and beauty.

Lecco Black

PORCELAIN

Natural Porcelain Ceramic

Lecco, nestled in the stunning landscape of northern Italy, is a city that captivates with its breathtaking natural beauty. Surrounded by majestic mountains featuring striking black peaks that soar high into the sky, Lecco is a picturesque haven for nature lovers and adventure seekers alike. The dark blue waters of Lake Como, which elegantly embraces the city's shores, serve as a mirror reflecting the grandeur of the towering cliffs and lush greenery that define the region.

These captivating vistas of Lecco have not gone unnoticed throughout history. The great Leonardo da Vinci found inspiration in its dramatic landscapes, often contemplating the interplay of light and shadow as he marveled at the striking contrasts of the area. The mountains, with their rugged silhouettes, and the lake's deep hues certainly left an indelible mark on the legendary artist, sparking his imagination and creativity.

Today, the beauty of Lecco continues to inspire artists and craftspeople, including the creators at Rivan. The Leko Rivan ceramic collection draws direct influence from the breathtaking nature surrounding this northern Italian gem. Each piece is designed to evoke the essence of Lecco's landscapes, reflecting the profound connection between art and nature that has long characterized the region. The deep blues of the lake and the rich blacks of the mountains come together in a harmonious dance, encapsulating the spirit of Lecco's enchanting environment.

MENDOZA

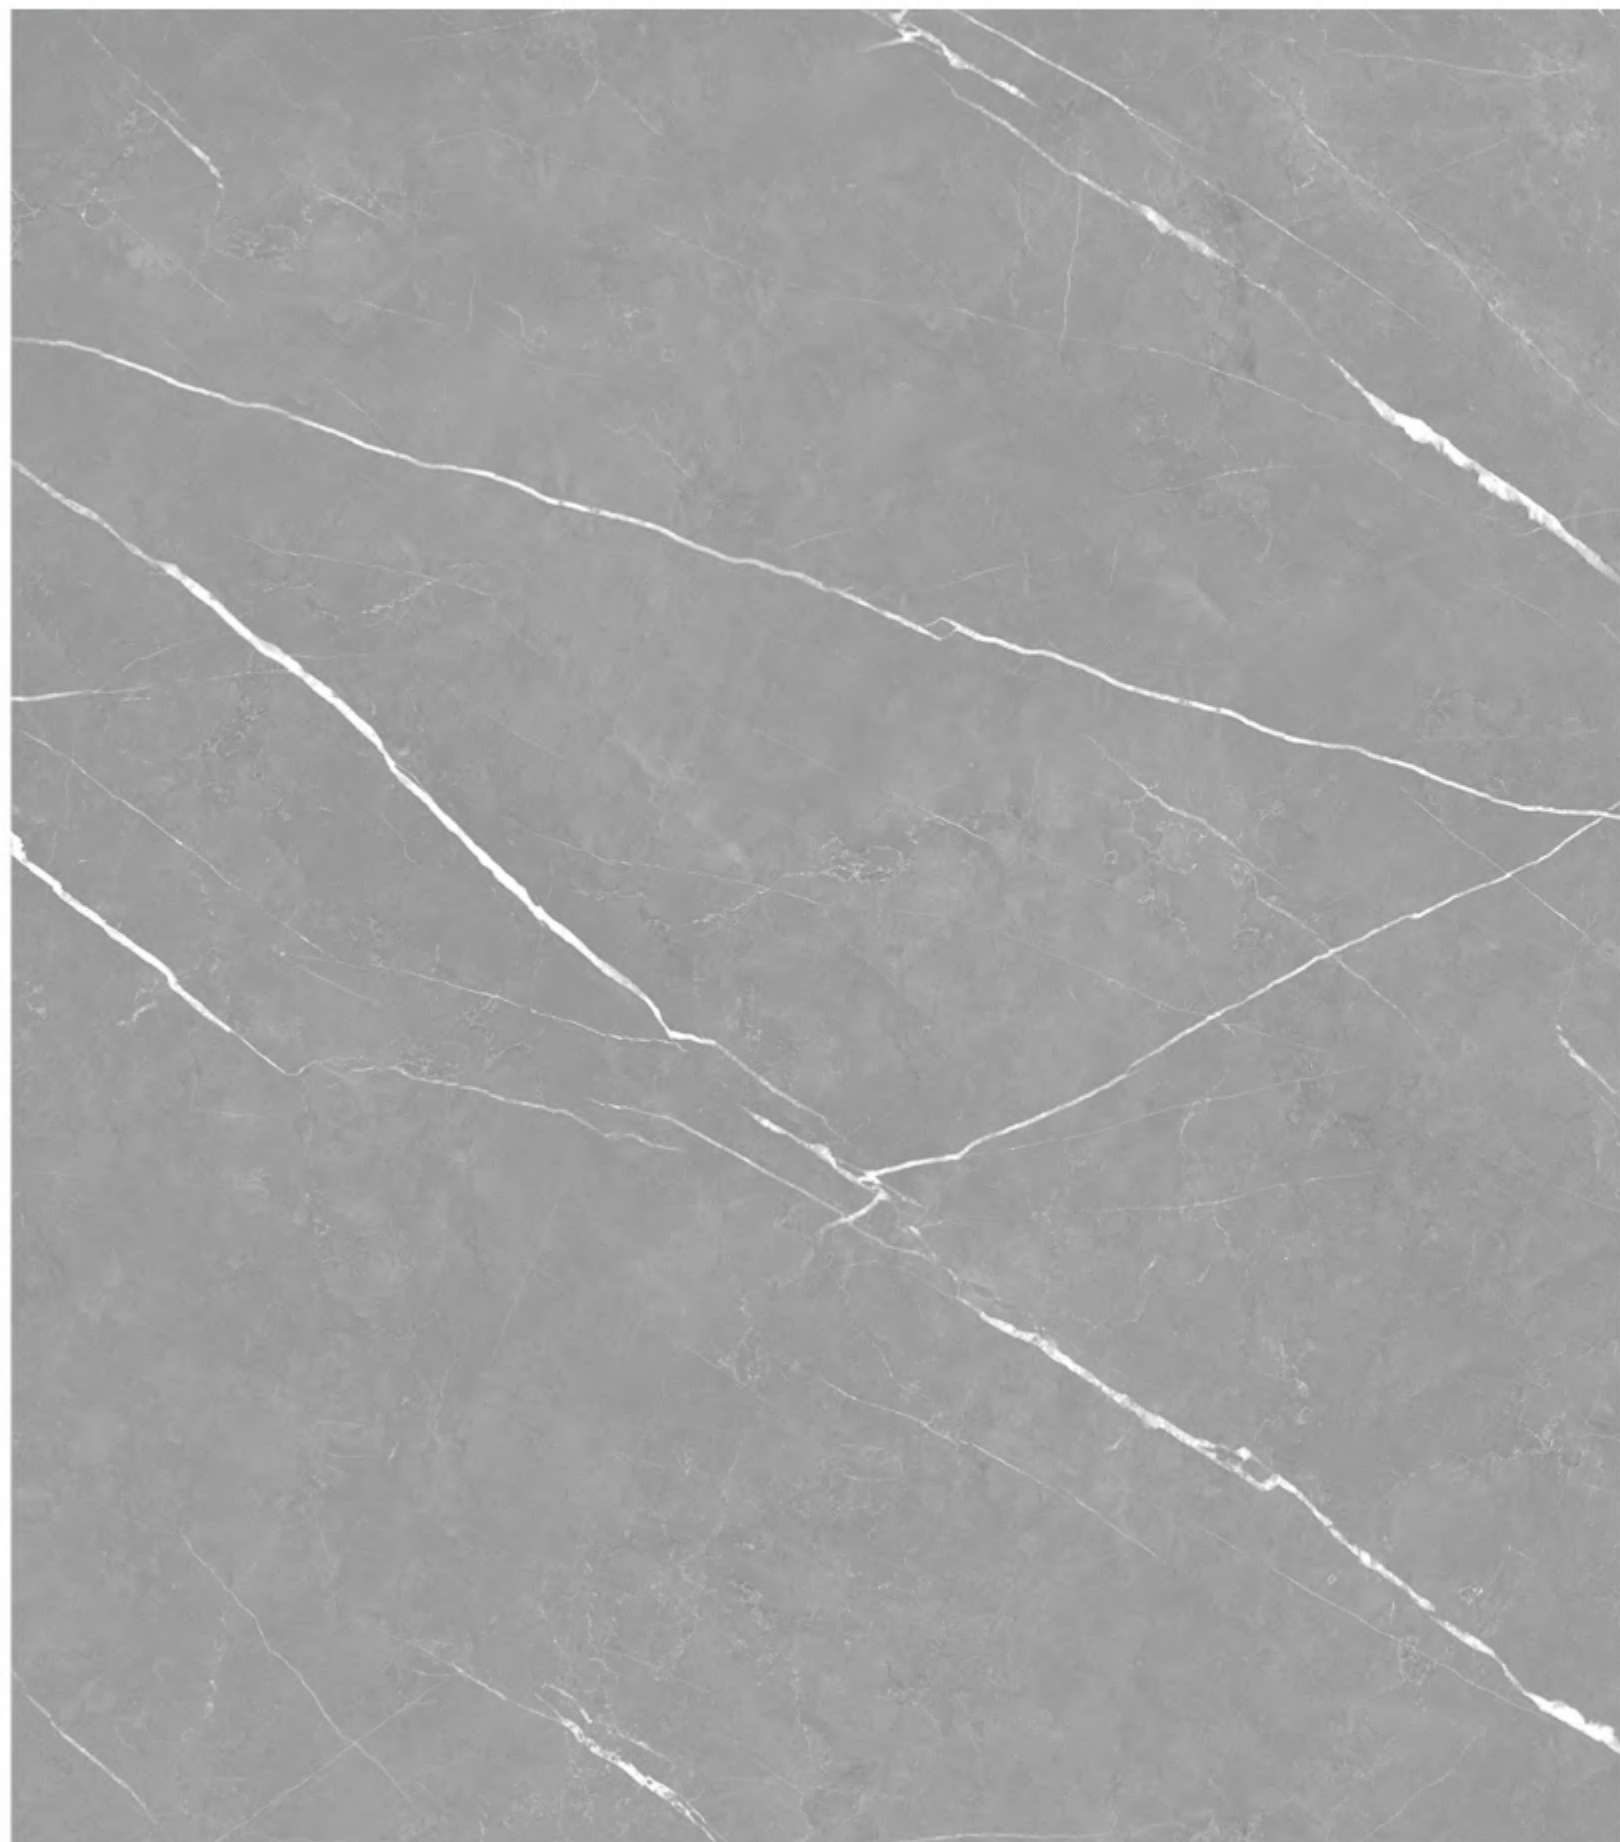

This design is produced with sugar glossy. The dense and hard surface of porcelain has made polishing a suitable alternative to glossy enamel surfaces. This means that a tile after baking, using polishing technology, will create a shine without glaze. What is ceramic polishing and nano polishing? However, polished ceramics may require sealing, and can absorb stubborn stains and become brittle in contact with water and chlorinated acids. When porcelain is first made, it is not water absorbent, but the polishing process to polish the unglazed surface creates microscopic holes in the surface that make the ceramic susceptible to stain absorption. Polished ceramics need insulation, such as nano, which are known as nano-polished ceramics after applying this insulation. Ceramics with nano treatment are more resistant to pollution and stain, more shiny and have sharper colors. The nano process is more complicated than you think. This process involves applying two different compounds up to ten layers deep on the ceramic surface, and then re-firing at 1250 degrees Celsius.

Rivan, a brand deeply influenced by its surroundings, draws inspiration from the natural elements of Quetta. The brand's designs are a reflection of the city's contrasting seasons, capturing the purity and tranquility of the snowy winters as well as the warm, golden glow of the summer landscape. The interplay between these two distinct seasons has left an indelible mark on Rivan's creations, infusing them with an essence of natural beauty and seasonal harmony.

Conversely, the summers in Quetta are hot and dry, causing the colors of nature to transition into shades of golden and shiny white. The arid climate and golden hues of the surrounding terrain under the bright sun create a mesmerizing and almost otherworldly spectacle.

SANTORINI

This design is produced with glaze polished. The dense and hard surface of porcelain has made polishing a suitable alternative to glossy enamel surfaces. This means that a tile after baking, using polishing technology, will create a shine without glaze. What is ceramic polishing and nano polishing? However, polished ceramics may require sealing, and can absorb stubborn stains and become brittle in contact with water and chlorinated acids. When porcelain is first made, it is not water absorbent, but the polishing process to polish the unglazed surface creates microscopic holes in the surface that make the ceramic susceptible to stain absorption. Polished ceramics need insulation, such as nano, which are known as nano polished ceramics after applying this insulation. Ceramics with nano treatment are more resistant to pollution and stain, more shiny and have sharper colors. The nano process is more complicated than you think. This process involves applying two different compounds up to ten layers deep on the ceramic surface, and then re-firing at 1250 degrees Celsius.

LUND

This design is produced with glaze polish and toxic sugar glossy semi polish. To produce sugar effect ceramic tiles, you should choose polishing materials from sugar effect powders, which are sugar-like and transparent particles. The method of making this patch is that the granulated raw materials are mixed with a certain amount of sugar effect powders and then these materials are placed on the surface of tiles or ceramics using special brushes and advanced machines.

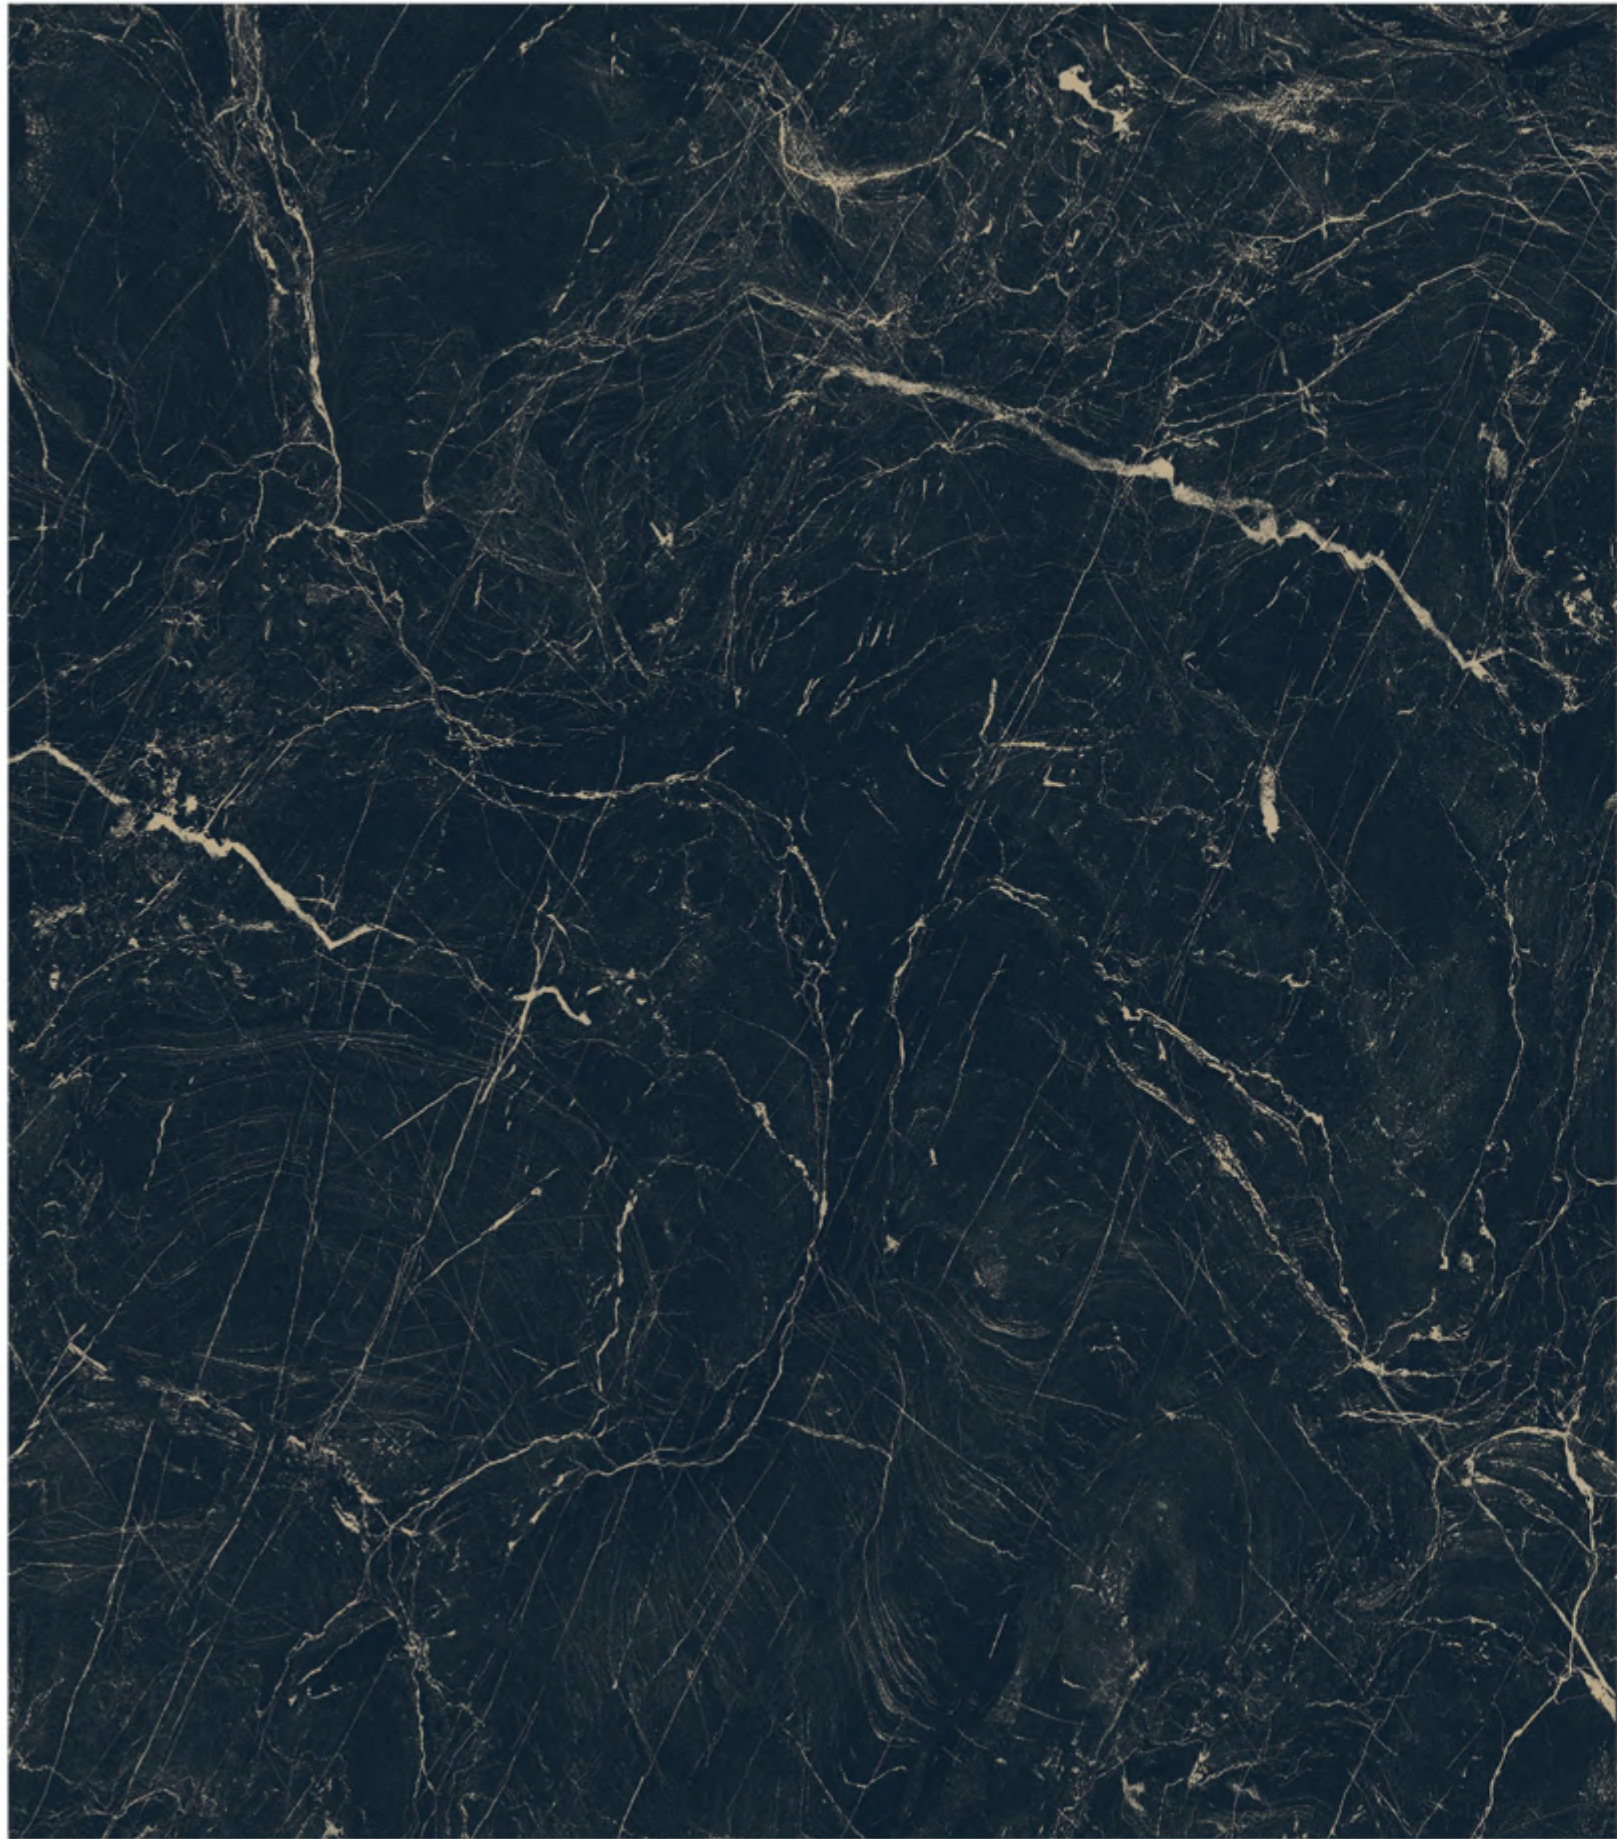

Digital printing technique can be used to produce ceramics with various designs and models in this type of ceramics. In this way, we print our desired design on the ceramic surface using special software.

Sometimes the sugar effect handle can also be considered a kind of toxic polishing ceramic because the materials are not spread evenly on it and it can be produced semi glossy or semi matte. Sugar-like materials on the ceramic surface give a special kind of beauty to this product, which has its own fans.

Rivan, a brand that celebrates the beauty of the world around us, has chosen to honor Lund by naming one of its ceramics after this captivating city. The design captures the essence of Lund's timeless allure, drawing inspiration from its medieval architecture and enchanting nights. By infusing this design with the spirit of Lund, Rivan has created a piece that embodies the beauty and history of this historic city, allowing wearers to carry a touch of Lund's magic wherever they go.

One of Lund's most enchanting features is its beautiful nights, where the city comes alive with the glow of twinkling lights against the backdrop of the dark night sky. The contrast of the black color of the city with the bright lights creates a magical ambiance that enchants all who wander its streets.
